1. In the late afternoon of a day in the summer of 1954, numerous leaflets of almost the same size and of white paper with black printing were dropped over the village of Reimswaldau. By order of the local authorities, the leaflets had to be gathered and turned over to the Militia.
2. The size of the leaflets corresponded to that of a DIN A 4 form and were cut lengthwise in the middle. The following three types of leaflets were dropped:
 - a. A leaflet in Czech. The head represented a bell with the inscription "VOLNA EVROPA" and seemed to have a number. One of the leaflets had No 10. The leaflet showed a scale of a radio set with instructions for use and elimination of disturbances when switched on. The transmitter could not be determined; however, it was a western station. The leaflet also showed a small boy in Soviet uniform and pictures of Hitler and Stalin. The anti-Communist propaganda text could not be remembered.
 - b. A leaflet in German. It was covered with a large "W" on which was printed an undetermined anti-Communist propaganda text. It also contained several addresses in Berlin.
 - c. A leaflet in Russian which was covered by a cyrillic letter and had an unidentified text.
